

CALL FOR PAPERS

Ancient Philosophy Society

Fourteenth Annual Independent Meeting

24-27 April 2014 at the University of South Florida

Honoring the richness of the American and European philosophical traditions, the Ancient Philosophy Society supports phenomenological, postmodern, Anglo-American, Straussian, Tübingen School, hermeneutic, psychoanalytic, and feminist interpretations of ancient Greek and Roman philosophical and literary works.

1. Papers are invited by e-mail attachment to submissions@ancientphilosophysociety.org on any topic in ancient Greek and Roman philosophy. Deadline: November 25, 2013.
2. Blind review policy of the APS:
 - a. All papers are reviewed by an anonymous Program
 - b. Committee selected by the Executive Committee to represent the range of interpretive traditions. The author's name, institution, or references pertaining to the identity of the author must be omitted from the paper, notes, and bibliography.
 - c. The e-mail accompanying the submission must include the author's name, the title of the paper, address, telephone, and e-mail address.
3. Papers must be written in English.
4. Submission implies that the paper is entirely the author's own unpublished work and that, where appropriate, the contributions of others are acknowledged.
5. Those who participate in the meetings of the APS must be members in good standing.
6. Membership information is available at www.ancientphilosophysociety.org.
7. Papers may not exceed 3,000 words of text (30 minutes' reading time), exclusive of footnotes and bibliography. Longer papers will not be forwarded to the Program Committee; abstracts will not be considered for the program.
8. Papers may be submitted in MS Word™, rtf, or pdf (and pdf is preferred if untransliterated Greek is used).
9. Because papers selected for presentation are collected and provided to meeting participants, please observe the following conventions: single-spacing, 1-inch margins on all sides, pages numbered, 12-point font for text, 10-point for footnotes.
10. Only one submission per author will be considered and no one may present a paper in consecutive years.
11. Receipt of papers will be acknowledged by e-mail.
12. Decisions will be reached by early January 2014 and authors will be notified by e-mail.
13. For current information about the meeting, consult the APS website:
www.ancientphilosophysociety.org.
14. Please direct all inquiries to submissions@ancientphilosophysociety.org.
